Rock n Roll Flea Market Historic Core Downtown LA

Shopwalk DTLA is back August 2 and going monthly! The all-new Shopwalk will focus on Broadway to Los Angeles Streets and 4th to 7th Streets, anchored at The Regent's Rock and Roll Flea Market, with more happening at the 5th Street Farmers Market. Neighborhood merchants will offer discounts, in-store events, tastings, performances, and more. Along with Pale Violet, we'll curate extra pop-ups in some vacant retail spaces. The community-driven day of fun, shopping, food, and entertainment will offer a monthly way to stay connected to merchants and trends in DTLA.

Thanks to Sub_Urban RIOT, we'll have our printed Shopwalk guides on hand and available throughout the neighborhood. Spot our November 2014 guides on the bulletin board in the background of this shot from last week's episode of True Detective.

Deandri's flagship store sells their trademark 100% handmade leather & wood shoes, plus harnesses, chokers, collars and bibs.

Bienvenidos a Tabachines

The Historic Core now has its first bicycle corral, installed at Main & 5th in front of Peddler's Creamery. LA City Councilmember Jose Huizar, LADOT General Manager Seleta Reynolds, Peddler's Creamery owner Edward Belden, and Historic Core BID Executive Director Blair Besten cut the ribbon and welcomed the corral to the neighborhood with an ice cream filled celebration. We're grateful to Council District 14 and LADOT for all their work, and happy to bring improved mobility and health to Downtown LA.

Last month saw crowded shows throughout the neighborhood as LA Conservancy's Last Remaining Seats film series took over the Historic Broadway Theaters such as the Million Dollar Theater, Los Angeles Theater, Orpheum, and United Artists at Ace. In addition to their regular programming, The Regent hosted the inaugural Art Walk Short Film Festival in partnership with NewFilmmakers LA.

Looking for a beautiful historic venue for your wedding, film shoot, or event? The Palm Court at the Alexandria Hotel will soon reopen for special events. Built in 1912 by architect John Parkinson, the Ballroom has hosted speeches by U.S. Presidents Taft and Wilson, the wedding of Charlie Chaplin, and boasts stained-glass Tiffany skylights.

REMINDER! The Historic

Check out several summer shows up now at galleries throughout the neighborhood. Stop by Howard Griffin Gallery this month at Spring & 4th and check out Israeli street art collective Broken Fingaz Crew's first ever US show "Journey Galactiko," depicting their artistic journey from India to Los Angeles, intertwining spiritual motifs and icons from the Indian religious tradition with the ubiquitous tropes of Western capitalist advertising. The Spring Arts Collective inside The Last Bookstore hosts "In the Heart of the City" featuring work by DTLA favorites Morley and Collette Miller. Other shows include "Strength in Numbers" at REN Gallery, a summer group exhibition at DAC Gallery, and "Step and Repeat" at MOCA.

Thank you for sharing in our community!
